STEAMBOAT WHISTLES.

Recollections of the Old-Time Interest in Western River Traffic. Twenty years ago, when steamboating was in its glory on the Mississippi. nearly every body had his ears trained to distinguish boat whistles, and men ould sit at home or rise up in bed at night and say on hearing a distant sig-nal: "There comes the Natchez," or

New Orleans." When the celebrated race between the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez from the interest was intense, and on the morning the steamboats were expected

It is on in the levee was thronged with people anxious to see the result. It was about noon when the Lee blew a blast as she passed Carondelet, and those who had bet their money on this boat, knowing the whistle was that of their favorite, set up a shout. Many bets which had been made were paid even before the states of the sta been made were paid even before the victorious steamer came in sight, so positive were all that she was the winner. The reason every one was so positive that it was the Lee was that the Natchez had a whistle totally unlike that of any other steamer on the river. It produced a warbling sound which was rather musical. This sound was brought about by suspending a ball in the cylinder.

The whistles of the boats were even used as a means of communication be-tween pilots who had a code of signals. As their boats passed on the river they would exchange greetings in this way, and some of them "had it down so fine," to use a common expression, as to be able to convey almost any information they desired. Frequently the passengers would be awakened at night by the most uncommon shrill sounds, and in great fear would inquire whether there had been a collision, and would be comforted by the assurance that it was "only the pilots talking to each

The whistles were all made in exactly the same way, but owing to their difference in size, or to the metal, they produced different sounds, the difference, however, only being distinguishable to the practiced ear. The first real novelty was introduced by Wm. McClellan, the present boiler inspector. He imported a newly-fashioned whistle from Philadelphia and put it on the Rescue, a harbor boat. This produced a sound similar to the howls of wild animals, and by contrast was dubbed "the mocking bird." The first morning it was used it caused quite a sensation in the city. The pilot of the Rescue kept blowing it at a furious rate, as the boat went up and down the harbor, and hundreds of people mistaking the blowing for the howls of wild animals rushed down to see what it all meant. The same whistle is yet used on the tug George Rhea.

The decline of the river traffic has naturally caused a decline in the general interest that was once taken in the river, and all things appertaining to it, and there are very few now ex-cepting experienced river men who can tell the whistle of a single boat that enters the harbor. The Anchor Line boats are known by the fact that on entering the harbor the pilot always signals their approach by one long, two short and a long blow, but long, two short and a long blow, but which one of the boats of this line is approaching would be a mystery, unless seen, to nearly every body. None of the other lines or boats owned by individuals have any regular method of announcing their coming. The science of steamboat whistling is "ast declining."

PROFITS OF AUTHORS.

Literary Men Who Have Made Fortunes by the Labor of Their Pens. It is often said that literature is not profitable calling, and that a very large majority of those who have devoted themselves to it have found this saying to be true. There is tittle doubt that the average earnings in the law and: "There comes the Nations," was very poorly paid. The "Vicar of Wakefield" brought him only $300. and his poem, the "Traveler," yielded only $105. Johnson himself had to be content with moderate rowards for his work, for "Rasselas," which was John. I was sitting in the Eden Musee It is interesting to note that now and then prose works brought substantial rewards in the last contury, and early in the present. As we approach more recent times we find yet larger sums pouring in upon the few popular authors who have succeeded in gaining a wide public hearing. For instance, Sir Walter Scott made, and, it is sad to say, squandered, a brilliant fortune, solely the labor of his pen. He is believed to have made out of his poems and novels as large a sum as $1,500,000. Yet he spoke of authorship as "a good walking-stick, but a very bad crutch!"

An eminent publisher offered Tom Moore $15,000 for a poem as long as Scott's "Rokeby," and the result was the production of his famous "Lalla Rookh." When Thomas Campbell was only twenty-one years of age he got $3,000 for his "Pleasures of Hope."

The English historians of the high-est rank have fared well in a pecuniary sense, and the same may be said of the three or four leading American historians. Hume got $3,500 a volume for his "History of England," and Macau-ley received once a check for $100,000 on account of three-fourths of the profit on his history. Gibbon's receipts from the "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" were probably not less than $50,000. Robertson's prosy "History of Scotland" brought him $30,000; and

Three or four American authors, who are still living, have made large fortunes by their books. Sometimes fortunes by their books. Sometimes a single work—like the life of Grant and Mr. Blaine's "Twenty Years in Congress," and General Wallace's "Ben Hur"—has earned a fortune for its author.

The oath was reaffirmed October 12, 1881, and the year 1890 is fixed as the time for limiting the imperial prerogative, forming two houses of parlia ment, and transforming the govern ment into a constitutional monarchy.

The Emperor's capital was changed from Kioto to Yeddo, which was renamed, and called Tokio. Feudalism, or the holding of fiefs by the daimio came to an end in 1871, by mperial edict, and the whole of great Japan was again directly under the Mikado's rule.

The titles of kuze and daimio were also abolished, both being re-named simply Kuasoku (Koo-as-a-koo), or noble families. The distinctions between the lower orders of people were scattered to the winds, and even the despised outcasts were made citizens.

Looking For A Location.

Mr. H. B. Landes, of Charleston Ill., has been in the city for severa days looking for a location to establish a house to handle poultry, eggs and butter on a large scale. He was brought here by correspondence with the Commercial Club and President Bassett spent several days showing him the surrounding country, with which he was very favorably impressed. He was much pleased with Hopkinsville and will in all probability locate here.

Belled Buzzard.

S. R. Boyd captured a buzard at his farm four miles from the city last week and took from its neck a bell, which was fastened around it with a leather strap. The bird was crippled and unable to fly and is probably the same one shot at by a gentleman in the Belleview neighborhood in the Christmas. Mr. Boyd took the bell off and kindly placed the buzzard u pon the carcass of a shoat, where he was left to enjoy himself. The bell had engraved upon it "M. K. White, Garrettsburg, Ky., 181." The date was somewhat indistinct but was probably intneded for 1881.

An Elopement That Didn't Elope. Charles Barnes and Miss Annie Morris, who live a few miles north of town, came to this city Wednesday evening on their way to Clarksville to get married. They left in a buggy about midnight, accompanied by several ccupies of friends; but after going about eight miles they were overtaken by James Morris, a brother of the would-bebride, who after a long parley persuaded the eloping couple to return, promising them that they would be allowed to marry at home. The time for the wedding had not been fixed at last accounts

Some unthoughtful persons are in he habit of writing on the walls in he post-office, posting bills or otherwise defacing the property. There is no reason why this should be done in the post-office any more than any business house or private residence, and for the benefit of those who do not know, we will state that any one who defaces property lays himself liable to a fine, and it might be well to be a little cautious in future. GENTLEMEN: - Although a stranger to you, and my testimonial entirely unnecessary, as it certainly is unsolicited, yet I take great pleasure in testifying to the excellence of your Ivory SOAP, and thanking you for putting it on the market at so low a price.

It has entirely supplanted the use of Castile and other fine soaps in my household for several years past, being in no way inferior and from fifty to seventy-five per cent, more economical.

A good test I find for the purity of a soap is to try it with a brush for cleansing the teeth, and the taste of the Ivory so used is perfectly sweet W. S. BAKER, M.D.

The Gist of the Samoan Question. The gist of the Samon question will be found in the following facts: In 1878 a treaty, by which the United States obtained a harbor and coaling station on the island of Tatulia—Pango harbor—was concluded with the finest harbor in the group of islands, capable of sheltering almost any number of modern war vessels of the larger size.

There has been a slight Changes of the Courier-Journal, occasioned by the sad condition of Col. W. H. Chilton, the commercial and financial editor. Mr. Charles H. Greathouse, the former exchange editor, has been assigned to protect it from the freezes. Several dogs have been killed in the Mt. Carmel neighborhood during the past two weeks that acted as though they had hydrophobia. No persons were bitten by them. Tobacco buyers are making their annual visits among the farmers endeavoring to buy their tobacco, but are offering very little for it, averaging about $1.25 for lugs, and $3.75 for good tobacco at the same time that is about as much as buyers can afford to give, the way tobacco is selling on the board.

Those journals which claim that Those journals which claim that the islands are outside the sphere of American influence ignore the fact that the possession of such a harbor as this is worth more to us than a whole fleet of modern war vessels Indeed, it is absolutely necessary to the conduct of naval operations on the Pacific ocean. Without coaling stations fast cruisers are utterly worth-less. England has been providing coaling stations at numerous points on the Pacific. She is now in dispute with France because of islands she phare do not the world before the Irate with France because of islands she phare do not need to make up for her exchanges.

Kentucky Railroads. The State Railroad Commissioners report the total railroad mileage in the State for 1888 at 2,601 miles-an increase of 315 miles over that of 1887.
